ANOTHER STEP TOWARDS ALUMINUM FOUNDRY AIR FILTRATION

Losma India recently concluded a large fume extraction project at a reputed foundry of Aluminum Alloys in Vadodara, Gujarat in India.

The project involved extraction of fume generated during the melting process of the Aluminum, air filtration and release of clean air adhering to norms of local pollution control authority, into the atmosphere. Foundry operations produce high amount of pollutants, and untreated release of these into the atmosphere is forbidden by local laws.

Losma installed a large suction fan, followed by a Water Scubber that filtered the pollutants from the incoming air, and released the clean air into the atmosphere.

This marked the 4th such project of Losma India in the domain of foundry air filtration, and it's success has led to requirements for more such systems from the same buyer.
